The Virginia - North Carolina Alliance for Minority Participation (VA - NC Alliance) seeks highly motivated undergraduate students majoring in a STEM field to apply to the 2020 Summer Research Program. Students are expected to devote at least 40 hours per week to research and other program activities. Emphasis is placed on conducting research in a lab setting where well-defined research goals, frequent communication, and significant contributions from multiple researchers are central to the success of a given project.

This program is designed for students interested in scientific research and considering graduate school. It requires students to report to lab daily and work independently under the guidance of the faculty and/or graduate student mentors on a research project chosen by the faculty mentor.
